this volume explores the italian contribution to the current global phenomenon of a return to reality by examining the country's rich cultural production in literature and cinema the focus is particularly on works from the period spanning the nineties to the present day which offer alternatives to notions of reality as manufactured by the collusion between the neo liberal state and the media the book also discusses italy's relationship with its own cultural past by investigating how italian authors deal with the return of the specter of neorealism as it haunts the modern artistic imagination in this new epoch of crisis furthermore the volume engages in dialogue with previous works of criticism on contemporary italian realism while going beyond them in devoting equal attention to cinema and literature the resulting interactions will aid the reader in understanding how the critical arts respond to the triumph of hyperrealism in the current era of the virtual spectacle as they seek new ways to promote cognitive transformations and foster ethical interventions

this book addresses gaps in our understanding of processes that underpin the making and circulation of children's screen contents across the arab region and europe taking account of recent disruptive shifts in geopolitics that call for new thinking about how children's media policy and production should proceed after large scale forced migration in both regions the book asks to what extent children in europe and the arab world are engaging with the same content who is funding new content and who is making it according to whose criteria whose voices are loudest when it comes to pressures for regulation of children's screen content and what exactly do they want the answers to these questions matter for anyone seeking insights into diverse cross cultural collaborations and content innovations that are shaping new investment and production relationships while television has always played a role in recording and curating history shaping cultural memory and influencing public sentiment the changing nature of the medium in the post network era finds viewers experiencing and participating in this process in new ways they skim through commercials live tweet press conferences and award shows and tune into reality shows to escape reality this new era defined by the heightened anxiety and fear ushered in by 9 11 has been documented by our media consumption production and reaction in small screen big feels melissa ames asserts that tv has been instrumental in cultivating a shared memory of emotionally charged events unfolding in the united states since september 11 2001 she analyzes specific shows and genres to illustrate the ways in which cultural fears are embedded into our entertainment in series such as the walking dead and lost or critiqued through programs like the daily show in the final section of the book ames provides three audience studies that showcase how viewers consume and circulate emotions in the post network era analyses of live tweets from shonda rhimes s drama how to get away with murder 2010 2020 abc s reality franchises the bachelor 2002 present and the bachelorette 2003 present and political coverage of the 2016 presidential debates though film has been closely studied through the lens of affect theory little research has been done to apply the same methods to television engaging an impressively wide range of texts genres media and formats ames offers a trenchant analysis of how televisual programming in the united states responded to and reinforced a cultural climate grounded in fear and anxiety as a new president takes power in russia this book provides an analysis of the changing relationship between control of russian television media and presidential power during the tenure of president vladimir putin it argues that the conflicts within russia s political and economic elites and president putin s attempts to rebuild the russian state after its fragmentation during the yeltsin administration are the most significant causes of changes in russian media tina burrett demonstrates that president putin sought to increase state control over television as part of a larger programme aimed at strengthening the power of the state and the position of the presidency at its apex and that such control over the media was instrumental to the success of the president s wider systemic changes that have redefined the russian polity the book also highlights the ways in which oligarchic media owners in russia used television for their own political purposes and that media manipulation was not the exclusive preserve of the kremlin but a common pattern of behaviour in elite struggles in the post soviet era basing its analysis predominately on interviews with key players in the moscow media and political elites and on secondary sources drawn from the russian and western media the book examines broad themes that have been the subject of constant media interest and have relevance beyond the confines of russian politics this book offers a fresh and accessible introduction to the relationship between media power and cultural production by marshalling a range of theoretical perspectives from political economy and cultural studies the media and cultural production invites the reader to analyze the relationship between the making of meaning political economic and social power and the machinery of cultural production the media the book critically examines the notion of the cultural industries examines the regulatory framework in which the cultural industries operate
